The Aromatherapist Distillation Standards

With the distillation process it is important, when it starts, how long it takes and which equipment is used (copper or high grade steel). A careful slow steam distillation under low pressure provides the best quality oil. Because the active constituents in medicinal plants have varied evaporation rates when exposed to heat, great attention is given during distillation to specific evaporation rates, as well as pressure, and temperature. This is an important step to ensure all biochemical constituents are captured and preserved, thus maintaining the integrity of the oil. Unfortunately, many oils sold by brokers and large commercial enterprises have been exposed to high heat and pressure in order to speed the distillation process and save on dollars. When money is the primary goal, the results can be devastating to the oil, as many of its vital therapeutic elements are forever lost.

Classifications of The Aromatherapist Oils

Certified Organic: Farming & Distillation ~ Confirmed by well-known agencies that no use of chemical fertilizers, herbicides, pesticides, and fungicides has been used. Furthermore, the slow low-pressure distillation process used on these farms preserves the maximum number of active components in the essential oils. This process of manufacturing pure organic oils, which requires more time and involves higher risks, is usually only practiced in a few small family enterprises. As a result, the organic essential oils are more costly than those of conventional farming methods.

Most of our certified organic products are controlled by the following organizations: Simples (France), Demeter (Germany), Suolo e Salute (Italy), Agrobio (Portugal), Vida Sana (Spain), CRAE (Spain), Biotop (Israel)

Organic Farming: ~ Like our certified organic, no use of chemical fertilizers, pesticides, herbicides or fungicides in the cultivation process. Distillation is low pressure. No overheating, slow distillation. The farmer is not a member of one of the controlling unions, but planting, harvesting and distillation are performed according to the old traditional methods without use of any chemical substances. Because of our close personal contact with these farms we are able to monitor their work and feel confident that no chemicals are used in the manufacturing process of their essential oils.

Wild/Certified Organic ~ This category applies to oils stemming from wild grown plants, harvested and distilled according to controlled organic regulations. Their manufacturing does not differ from that of certified organic.

Wild ~ These essential oils are gathered from plants in their uncultivated, wild state. These oils are, in essence, organic and free from chemical residues, since the hand of nature has only touched the them.

Absolute ~ Absolutes are obtained by extracting oil from rare plants & flowers through the use of chemicals; such as hexane. Many feel absolutes are not true essential oils, therefore have no place in true aromatherapy. However, they are wonderful for use in blending exquisite perfumes and are more affordable than the distilled version. Still, some plants or flowers cannot be distilled at any level to produce oil so they can only be found as absolutes.

CO2 Extraction ~ CO2 extraction uses carbon dioxide to extract the aromatic substances from the plants. This method allows a gentle treatment of the plants because the oil can be extracted at temperatures of about 30 degrees Celsius.

Our Cultivation Methods:

C. Organic = Confirmed by independent certification that product is organically grown and distilled.

Organic = Organic cultivation methods w/out use of herbicides, pesticides, etc.

Wild = These plants are gathered in their natural, uncultivated state.

Wild/Organic = Wild growth & distilled under certified organic regulations.

Abs. = Oils are obtained from the plant by means of alcohol or solvent extraction.

S = Traditional farming methods. Oils that are not found on the market as wild growth or organic but are confirmed to be grown w/out use of chemicals by GC analysis and our founder Dr. Malte Hozzel. Our personal contact with the growers ensures product quality.

Our Distillation Standards:

With the distillation process it is important, when it starts, how long it takes and which equipment is used (copper or high grade steel). A careful slow steam distillation under low pressure provides the best quality oil. Because the active constituents in medicinal plants have a varied evaporation rate when exposed to heat, great attention is given during distillation to specific evaporation rates, as well as pressure and temperature. This is an important step to ensure all biochemical constituents are captured and preserved, thus maintaining the integrity of the oil. Unfortunately, many oils sold by brokers and large commercial enterprises have been exposed to high heat and pressure in order to speed the distillation process and save money. When money is the primary goal, the result can be devastating to the oil, as many of its vital therapeutic elements are forever lost.

Customer Comments:

"Thanks, your company is fantastic! It is so nice to find a company with (real live) efficient people like you who remember good, old fashioned customer service!!" ~ Kristin H. (Florida)

"Thanks for your prompt reply! I love your oils and your service!" ~ Ellen D. (Watertown, MA)

*"I just wanted to send a quick fax to let you know that I could not be happier with this line of oils!"
~ Nicole (Buyer - NY Health Food Store)*

"I received my first order of essential oils. WONDERFUL!!! Far superior to other suppliers." ~ Kate (Virginia)

"We have been buying The Aromatherapist oils for years and they are the best selling brand in our store! We Love You. " - Kay (WFM)

*"I got my first order! Thank you very much! They are absolutely beautiful!
The Myrrh is exquisite! VERY different from what I have now. And the Ginger is much more subtle, and "natural" than what I have used in the past." ~ Anet (Houston, TEXAS)*

SYNERGISTIC BLENDS

Our SYNERGIES are compositions of 100% pure single essential oils blended together with the specific intention of enhancing their therapeutic and aromatic qualities. Each blend was masterfully crafted by our founder, Dr. Malte Hozzel and was created with up to 40 different single essential oils. Use in a diffuser, mix into lotion or unscented massage oil, inhale directly from the bottle, or mix with milk for a relaxing or rejuvenating bath!
